LEADING THOUGHTS

At the Dawn of the Age of Michael

The Anthroposophical Society of Switzerland
Open conference

15th – 17th February 2019

Goetheanum Dornach

Spiritual Strength

This year the Swiss Anthroposophical Society's conference addresses the so-called Michael Letters and Rudolf Steiner's Leading Thoughts. He wrote these short compositions in the last part of his life, to the members of the newly founded Anthroposophical Society. These letters appeared shortly after one another, in the newsletter for members of the Anthroposophical Society. They are a motivational stimulus in exact thoughts for the life and functioning of a society whose members want to put spiritual life in the centre, in an up to date way. How modern and how future oriented they can be, is experienced when one studies these focussed writings more deeply.

The spiritual power that finds expression in the name of Michael, is apparent in the versatile descriptions in this text. A living realisation of this being, is made possible. The last letter: From Nature to Sub-nature, written just days before Rudolf Steiner died, appears as a liability, embracing the great tragedy of world development in future insightful images.

Through the talks in the conference the significance of these letters for the future and for our daily work will become clear. Aspects of how we deal with language and content of the texts, can be experienced through the eurythmy performances and demonstrations.

Milena Kowarik and Clara Steinemann
